Japanese students arrive

Recognize any of these studious faces? Most likely you don't, but these students from Japan will be mingling with Hartnell students for the next three months. Greyhound buses delivered the 62 Japanese Agricultural Training program participants Saturday. As trainees, the students will stay with host families in Salinas and study Ornamental Horticulture and Vegetable Production. The trainees trekked from farms in Colorado, Idaho, Nebraska, Oregon and Washington.

Accreditation team to visit Hartnell in March

by Jon Kemp

On March 20 Hartnell will be visited by a team of investigators whose goal will be to determine the accreditation status of this school. Hartnell is a member of the Association of Western Schools and Colleges and receives its accreditation through that body. The last time Hartnell was visited by an accreditation team was in 1973.

In preparation for the coming visit the administration has directed the compilation of the 1979 accreditation report. On Dec. 19 the Superintendent and the Dean of Instruction presented the preliminary draft to the Board of Trustees. The final draft is expected to be put before the Board by Jan. 16.

The report contains nine segments that outline the problems and appraisals of such areas as; student services, educational program, staff, finances, physical facilities and administration. Also included are numerous profiles on the student population at Hartnell. A three page outline of the functions and philosophy of the College introduces the subjective evaluations that were drawn up by committees representing the nine areas examined.

The 1973 accreditation team left recommendations pertaining to these areas of organization at Hartnell. Responses to these comments touch upon progress made in areas such as affirmative action, organization of committees, and administration.

Although the preliminary draft is at least partly designed to allow examination and comment by the Hartnell community there were few administrators, staffers or instructors who were prepared to speak out on the content of the document. Those comments that were made centered on the fact that the timing of the issuing of the report leaves little time for examination.

Possibly the most critical portion of the report is found under the Institutional Governance and Administration heading. This section cites the "calculated change in the spirit of the leadership," at Hartnell. The report goes on the detail the faculty administration disagreements, Staff Satisfaction Survey, and "musical chairs" method of administration reassignments, ending with a call for the reassessment of the proper function of leadership at Hartnell.

Fassett tapped for vacancy on Hartnell governing body

Following a thirty day provisional period of non-voting observation, Dr.

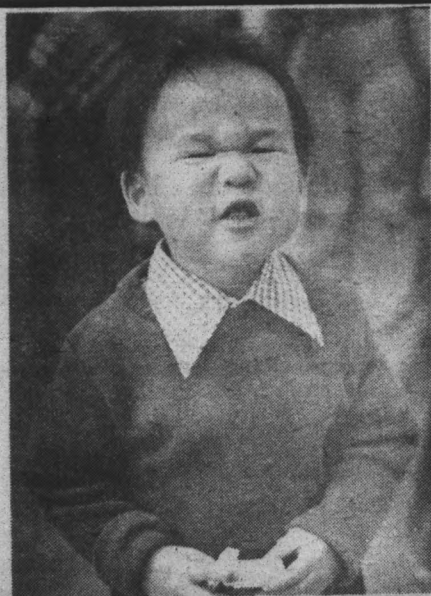

James Fassett, 58, of Gonzales, will fill the vacancy on the Hartnell Governing Board created by the resignation of Larry Blomquist.

Dr. James Fassett

Dr. Fassett, a 22 year veteran of the Board, represented Area #2 from 1955 to 1977. Praise for the appointment came from many segments of the Hartnell community. One exception was Trustee William Bryan who cast the sole dissenting vote against the Dec. 19 appointment. Commented Bryan, "I think we should get some new ideas."

Faculty reaction was more favorable with Dr. Fassett being described by various instructors as, "warm, sincere and dedicated", "willing to listen" and as "a proven friend of the faculty."

Students to feel effects of five new officials

by Cyndee Fontana

Within the next few weeks, students will feel the effects of decisions made by a student governing body with five new members.

After the votes from the Dec. 12 and 13 election were tallied, 145 Associated Students of Hartnell College had elected four new senators and a commissioner of student facilities.

Receiving votes of sanction from the student body were Julie Fields, Lisa Conklin, Michael Ross and Pat Walberg; with total vote tallies of 102, 101, 93 and 71 respectively. Finishing fifth in the senatorial race was Hermelinda Rocha, with 63 votes.

Tracy Fossett led a successful write-in campaign for the position of commissioner of student facilities, being re-elected for a second term with 62 votes.

The new officers join commission members Maria Barrs, president, Gary Karnes, vice-president, Micki Cole, commissioner of spring activities, Jeannie Nelson, commissioner of communications, and Pat Williams, commissioner of finance.

The ASHC has a vacancy in the office of commissioner of fall activities; and will appoint a new secretary for the spring semester.

An election is being planned to seek approval from the student body for proposed constitutional changes.

'Falables' musical to open

Wolves are in--and so is "Aesop's Falables."

Yes, "Aesop's Falables" (not fables), --it's a musical comedy that is expected to rock the audience into rolls of laughter.

"Aesop's Falables" is a rock musical based on a collection of well-known fables. The play will be presented by the Hartnell Children's Theatre and will run for three days, starting tonight at 8 p.m. in the Hartnell Performing Arts Theatre. It will also be presented Saturday, Jan. 13 at 8 p.m. and Sunday, Jan. 14 at 2 p.m.

The show will be directed by Ronald Danko, musical director is Kathy Ossmann, choreography is by Jeannie Robinson and set design is by Stanley R. Crane. Michael Ingle is costume constructor.

Editorial: Consolidate elections in March

Prop. 13 has been the cause (or the scapegoat) for many cutbacks ever since its passage last June. We no longer have "Hartnell Presents," more than 100 part-time teachers lost their jobs, and many classes have been cancelled, all due to Prop. 13.

One of the most serious economy measures has been the consolidation of school board elections with other district elections. Instead of holding school board elections in March, the state legislature has decided to hold all elections in November, to save money. This decision applies on a state-wide basis.

Consolidation of school elections with unified district elections (water districts, sewage districts) does save money. Martha Riley, Monterey County Registrar of Voters, estimates that an election to fill the vacancy opened by Larry Blomquist's resignation from the Hartnell board could cost $20,000. (That figure is based on an estimate of 20,000 voters in that district.) It was a lot cheaper, economically, to appoint Dr. Fassett.

Election consolidation doesn't sound like such a bad idea until the effects start to hit home, as they have here at Hartnell.

Hartnell is governed by seven trustees, each representing a different district. At present, three of those trustees have been appointed, not elected. This means that almost half of the direction this college receives comes from people who have not received voter sanction.

This is not to imply that the appointees are unworthy of their position. But what about voters' rights? The reason school trustees position are elective and not appointive is because trustees hold a public trust. Trustees are ultimately responsible for the quality of education and the spending of public monies entrusted to their schools. The public should have a say in who handles public money.

In addition to the three appointees (Granville Perkins, York Gin, James Fassett), two other trustees' terms would have expired in March (James Schwefel, Allen Caldeira). Now their terms have been extended until November, and voters must put up with three trustees they never approved and two more trustees voters might have wanted to replace.

Instead of moving the March school elections back to November, why doesn't the legislature consolidate school and Unified District elections in March? That way voters wouldn't have to wait eight months to voice their opinions of the trustees. Also, holding small district elections separate from the November primaries will give more emphasis to the smaller districts, which easily could be overshadowed by the primary's issues.

As it stands now, Sacramento blew it.

From Where I Stand...

by Sheila E. Toner

... anyone who wasn't in the cafeteria Dec. 15 missed a good thing.

The English as a Second Language (ESL) students held a Christmas party with some of the best entertainment I have ever seen at Hartnell (and I think Hartnell has damn good entertainment.)

The party started with breakfast served up by Merv ("You run over it, I'll cook it") Swigert and the merry cafeteria crew. Then as soon as people were settled, the party cranked up to full steam.

Onlookers were honored first with a dance by a Polish ESL student, Jerzy Kozlowski, formerly with the Bolshoi Ballet. With that kind of background, it's no wonder the man was so terrific. How terrific was he? Well, I was so enthralled with his performance, I forgot to take pictures. The Bolshoi's loss is definitely Hartnell's gain.

Next a Panamanian student, Carlos Man Jr., played an accoustical guitar and sang. He has a very beautiful voice, very sweet and rich. He is also very poised in front of an audience.

Then the students from Micronesia performed some dances indigenous to their culture. (Micronesia is a group of islands in the Pacific Ocean, east of the Philippines and north of the equator.) These women seemed a little timid about performing, but the dances were very interesting. I would like to have seen more.

The dancing was capped by a performance of some Latin-American dances performed with gusto and precision by Cointa Teran, Cipriano Magana and two other people. These people can dance! The hat dance and the machete dance were both excellent (the machetes added a beautiful ringing sound to the lively music.) Also, a very talented young lady (name unknown) performed a lovely swirling dance, garbed in a long white dress which floated about her like a cloud.

"No, I'm not drunk, I just took 10 exams."

The party drew to a close with a sing-along (why are people so bashful about singing together in public?) Ginny Wright Theriault, Donna Gomez and the ESL students gave us a wonderful Christmas gift. Thank you.

... school, as one writer pointed out recently in another column in this paper recently, is for learning. (In case you didn't know.) People are here at Hartnell to further their education, to gain knowledge. [Please turn to p. 3]

Lounge use clarified

To the Editor:

We would like to take this opportunity to respond to the Dec. 8 editorial regarding the student body officers, the Japanese Agriculture Program, and the use of the Student Lounge.

The ASHC originally objected to the use of the lounge by the program for the two weeks beginning Jan. 8 for the following reasons: 1) it would interfere with the normal traffic flow of the lounge, 2) inhibit the use of the ASHC office located in the lounge and 3) deny other students the use of the lounge during its peak hours.

More than the reasons listed above, we feel that the lounge should not be used as a classroom, and by permitting its use as such, an undesirable precedent could be set. We also feel that it is the school's responsibility to make arrangements for facilities for any and all programs it sponsors, without unduly inconveniencing the remainder of the student population.

We agreed to the use of the lounge as requested when it became clear that there was no alternative other than taking the 62 Japanese students off campus.

We are entirely in support of the program, and warmly welcome these students to Hartnell.

Thank you
Maria Barrs, ASHC president

From Where I Stand...

True, but is the classroom the only place we learn?

I think not. The classroom is the least significant learning environment, notwithstanding that a majority of the population spends 16 or more years in school.

All human beings, except dead people or severely disturbed individuals, learn something every moment of their lives.

Here at Hartnell, the opportunities for learning outside the classroom are almost endless. There are many committees, and even the governing board meetings, from which one may learn the organizational and political structure of the school. When I first came to Hartnell, I didn't have any idea what the governing board did, nor did I know what the function of the curriculum committee was. I have learned a great deal from attending the meetings of both groups. Now I know that the governing board runs the school, approves expenditures of funds; now I know that the curriculum committee hears proposals for new courses, revisions of existing courses, and the grouping of courses as programs.

I have also learned much from the faculty members themselves.

Computer team places 5th overall

Hartnell's computer science team, Keith Bentley, Carl Meyer, David Maison and Doug Smith, took fifth place at the recent contest sponsored by the regional chapter of the Association for Computer Machinery (ACM).

The team won first place, however, among the junior colleges present.

Eight teams from other colleges and universities competed in the contest, each team receiving four problems to do in six hours. Chico came in first place by finishing three of the four problems.

Hartnell's computer science instructor, Elizabeth Alpert, said that the Hartnell students worked well as teams and were very organized. She also added that it was a "good learning experience for both the students and myself. I hope we find the money to do it again."

Ms. Alpert said next year she would like to have a local contest first, and the winners of that contest would then go on to the regional contest.

Many teachers are well-travelled people. Some of them have interesting hobbies. One of my English teachers used to tell of the self-defense course she took (karate or judo — she didn't look the type.) Another teacher in another department has interesting tales of his journeys in Europe.

Students lead interesting lives too, as the entertainers at the ESL Christmas party demonstrated. Who would have thought we had a former member of the (very) prestigious Bolshoi Ballet in our midst? Our own student body president, Maria Barrs, has interesting stories and views.

Then there are people like Kathy Nelson in the PE department, and Barbara in the cafeteria, who are just plain nice to talk to.

Walk around this campus: there are many things going on, to learn from and enjoy. Go to a governing board meeting or to student body government meetings — find out about the people and procedures that determine the quality of life at Hartnell.

Sure you're here to learn. But learning doesn't mean just poli sci and English lessons: the best learning comes when you know how to use all your experiences to enjoy life.

Review: 'Madness' tells it like it never was

by Regina Costa

"Reefer Madness" (F.B.I.) ***
"Reefer Madness" features flawless performances, skillful directing, an enlightened script and something all too rare in this day and age — a message for young people. Three stars for this movie!!!

Charles "Tex" Watson shines in his role as the good-kid-gone-bad in this 1939 government-issued classic. He successfully manages the transition from a typical American boy whose younger brother runs around the house yelling "Bill's got a girl! Bill's got a girl!" (aw, mom, make him cut it out), to a dope-smoking lover of older women. An extremely difficult role handled with skill and insight.

Bill's girl, Mary, portrayed by Dorothy Long, is a model for good young American girls to follow. Her curly brown locks and low-heeled shoes make her a person with whom the youth of this country can identify. Her good upbringing and purity are shown when, although loaded after being tricked into smoking a marihuana cigarette (known in slang terms as a reefer), she does not submit to the unwholesome desires of the dope-crazed Ralph. (Ralph is an older man who perverts high school kids.)

The consequences of indulging in this habit are exemplified in the accidental shooting death of Mary, Bill's conviction (and his subsequent acquittal) and the confinement of Ralph to an institution for the rest of his natural (or unnatural) life.

ASHC dance cold, band was frozen

Problems with heat and advertising kept the Hartnell Christmas dance from cooking Dec. 16.

The band "Once Again" played to the few students courageous enough to brave the cool temperature. "The gym was freezing. They (the custodial staff) turned off the boilers," said Associated Students of Hartnell College (ASHC) president Maria Barrs.

Heat in all buildings on campus is turned off over weekends to conserve energy. Barrs stated the ASHC was unaware of the policy. The maintenance staff has said heat will be left on in a facility used for weekend activity.

Barrs commented that attendance, "wasn't bad, wasn't great. We didn't advertise enough."

Is the sky falling? No, but the ceiling is!

by Pam Edwards

Belinda Sison, Kerrie Duggins and myself were walking through the CRAC building after our Spanish class was dismissed due to an ill teacher.

Something very strange happened. Belinda was walking toward the double doors leading into a second floor hallway, when a huge piece of ceiling fell in her path no more than six inches away from her face!

It's not everyday you see hunks of ceiling barely miss bopping you, or someone you know, on the noggin. What makes the situation really enjoyable is that it seems to blend in marvelously well with elevators that break down and the loose bricks that adorn the statue of the panther.

Afterwards my esteemed colleague Regina Costa and I returned to the scene of the crime to snatch up the evidence in hope that the hole in the ceiling would be there when we returned with a camera. I carried the momento under my arm until Regina decided that she wanted to carry it. In keeping with her radical, non-conformist image she decided to carry the pilfered article on top of her head. No sooner had she placed it on her hat, than the thing broke in half just like it would have done if it had hit Belinda.

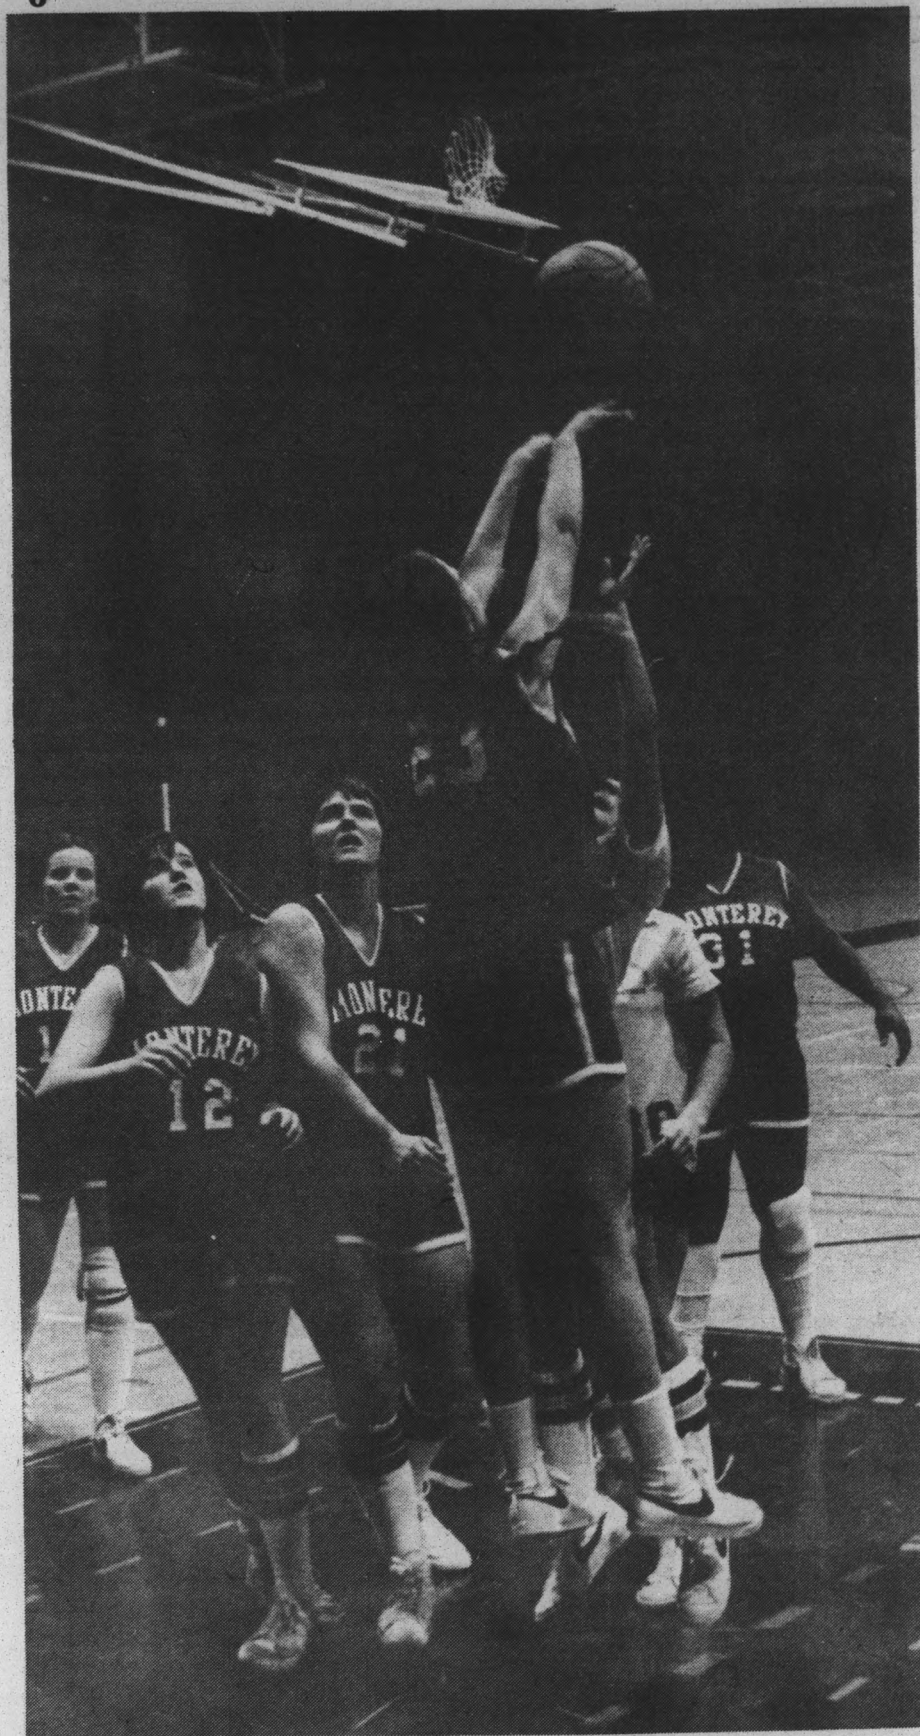

So if you happen to be strolling through the CRAC building on a cold, windy day, don't look up. you may not be so lucky.

Rowe: 'We'll go with five'

by "Doc" Moseley

Equality for women in athletics has taken a giant step forward — or backward, depending on how you look at it — at Hartnell.

The women's basketball team has taken a part in the quasi-tradition of inter-team controversy that has engulfed the men's team for the past two seasons.

Before the season started, "Skip" Beltran, a freshman with the moves and ball handling ability that could've sparked the Panther women to a top-contending position in the Coast Conference, was given her walking papers by Coach Ellie Rowe. Reason given: attitude problem.

Last Friday night, just before the Hartnell-MPC conference opener, it was learned that freshman Cathy Strobbridge, a starting forward with skills at both ends of the court, had also been granted a dishonorable discharge. Reason given: attitude problem.

Those separate-but-equal incidences, along with the unexplained disappearances of Frances Camacho, Karen Everett and Anna Siaz, have brought the Hartnell roster down to five. Since it's in the rules that a team will have five players on the court, the quick and obvious conclusion is that the Panthers are stuck without a substitute. Never mind "bench strength," there's no bench at all, save for the chairs, and they can't play.

"We've got five and we'll go with five," said Ms. Rowe. With the likes of Diane Mazzei, Rayann Hansen, Gloria Flores and a vastly improved Bonnie Jo Welch, the statement could, theoretically, seem just that simple.

But players foul out and get injured, particularly the latter considering the scrappy hustle with which the Panthers take to the court. Against teams of the calibre of MPC, not known as a powerhouse, the Panthers have proven they can go with five.

"I think we'll be in it (the Coast Conference race)," Ms. Rowe said after the MPC game. "We'll do all right. It'll take awhile to see who comes out as the power team."

Immediately, images of last year's conference champion Cabrillo come to mind. When Hartnell faces off against the Seahawks et al, five will more than likely not be enough. There is, after all, strength in numbers.

Women drop thriller to MPC in Coast Conference opener

by "Doc" Moseley

If last Friday night's game against the Monterey Peninsula College Lobos was any indication, the 1979 women's basketball Coast Conference chase should prove to be quite interesting for Hartnell.

In that game, the conference opener, five, count 'em, five Panthers played the entire 40 minutes, hustling like there was no tomorrow, only to go down to a 51-47 defeat.

Hartnell, with a 1-9 overall record, travelled to Fremont Wednesday night to face the Ohlone Renegades, and will have a week to regroup before taking on the U.C. Berkeley junior varsity next Friday night at Berkeley.

For heart-pounding excitement, the MPC game would be hard to beat. The lead changed hands six times in the second half. The Lobos took a six-point edge with 14:05 left, but the Panthers rallied with buckets by Diane Mazzei, Gloria Flores and a 20-foot bomb by Rayann Hansen to take a 36-34 lead.

Monterey hit two quick baskets to regain the lead, but the Panthers came back again, with Hansen gunning one home from nine miles out and then taking a lead pass from Mazzei to the hoop on a fast break. Flores made it 43-40 on a 15-footer with 8:07 left.

The Lobos got the lead back once more, and switched from a 2-3 zone defense to a full-court press with 5:26 remaining. But the strategy backfired as the Panthers were able to penetrate inside against the scattered press. Bonnie Jo Welch tied it at 45 and Hansen hit two free throws to give Hartnell the advantage yet again — but for the last time.

After a three-minute scoreless period, Lobo forward Ellen Taylor hit one to tie it at 47. With 45 seconds left, Linda Rawson fouled Taylor as the two went for a rebound. Taylor missed the free throw, Mazzei grabbed the rebound, and lost it out of bounds.

On the in-bounds play, Sue Robinson skied over Welch to pop in a 12-footer, and that was that.

MPC 24 27 — 51

Men dump MPC in OT

"Team effort."

The phrase is a coach's best friend; it is used, when responding to a writer's questions, for the sake of diplomacy.

But when five basketball players score in double figures, another chalks up six assists, and the result is a 79-75 overtime victory over a team that was ranked third among small colleges in the state, the shoe fits. So wear it with pride.

That's what happened when the Panthers met Monterey Peninsula College last Saturday night in the Coast Conference opener at Monterey.

It was the third straight victory for Hartnell, now 10-8 overall, and the second consecutive overtime loss for the Lobos.

The Panthers, who played host to the Ohlone Renegades Wednesday night, will be home again to face the Menlo Oaks this Wednesday night at 7:30.

Tom Perkins and Rickey Roundtree continued their scoring barrages against the Lobos, gunning home 19 points each. Perkins hit 13 of his markers in the second half, sparking a Panther comeback. Ralph Gutierrez, Ed Scheff and Jim Rossi, the sole sophomores in the lineup, hit 12, 11 and 10 points respectively. Terry Hay was held to four points but had six assists.

Following a seesaw first half, in which the Lobos maintained a 33-31 lead, Hartnell rallied behind four straight Perkins scores to take a 55-46 advantage. But MPC reversed the flow to tie it at 67 with a minute and a half remaining.

Neither team could break the knot within regulation play, but the Panthers outscored Monterey 8-4 halfway through the five-minute overtime period on buckets by Scheff and Roundtree to put it away.

Doc Talk

by "Doc" Moseley

Eight may be enough — ABC-TV seems to think so — but it's doubtful that five, over the course of 13 games, will make it.

The Hartnell women's basketball team was in serious trouble before last Friday's game against MPC, and Coach Ellie Rowe had to know it. The equation is simple: Six players on the roster, minus five on the court equals one substitute...and a lot of tired people.

And then there were five.

Ms. Rowe, in only her second year at Hartnell, has had enough trials and tribulations to last an average coaching career, it would seem.

The decision to "fire" Cathy Strobbridge, thus leaving the Panthers with a grand total of five players to finish the Coast Conference schedule, must've come with extreme duress. It was a great sacrifice; a shot at more numbers under the 'W' for team integrity.

Which, then, is more important?

Dissent-riddled teams can, and do, win games. The prime-cut example is the New York Yankees.

Billy Martin hated Reggie Jackson, and vice versa. George Steinbrenner was not terribly fond of Martin. Yet the Yanks took two consecutive World Championships.

But they got paid to win. A college coach gets paid to coach, and players get nothing to play, save for the satisfaction of playing.

Ms. Rowe is, somewhat ironically, to be commended on her decision. To sacrifice a team's chances of winning for the sake of making order of chaos is something few coaches might do.

Many highly successful coaches — Vince Lombardi, Bear Bryant — contend that winning rates above all.

Above unity and respect, Coach?

Standage high on aquapersons; women may threaten MPC

by Pam Edwards

"We've got the makings of a real good team," said Scott Standage, newly-deemed coach of men's and women's swimming at Hartnell. Standage, who coached the water polo team last fall, will again be taking over Mike Garibaldi's coaching duties. Garibaldi, with a bullet still lodged next to his spinal cord since being shot last April by former D.A.'s investigator Mike Hernandez, has not been authorized by his doctor to return to coaching and the time of his return is not known.

The Hart women look like a force to be reckoned with this year, with Lynn Vogt, Kathy Schramm, Cheryl Witner and Cindy Holm returning for their second season here. The women's roster boasts the same depth as last year and they will defend their Coast Conference Pentathlon title on Feb. 10 at Hartnell.

On the male end of the spectrum, Standage feels that the men will have a rougher time but they do have a lot of potential. Scott Jerold, who had an impressive season last year, will be returning along with Mike Hinkel, Mike Farrell, Mike Shipp and Bernie Gribas.

Looking toward the future, Standage said, "The success of our season depends on getting the people out that have eligibility. If we get everybody out that's eligible, we'd have a dynamite season, I think."

The women, Standage feels, have a good chance to dethrone defending champ Monterey Peninsula College. With their experience and depth it's not such a far-out idea.

On the other hand, the Hart men will have to sink a tough Cabrillo team if they want to see aquatic gold.

On Feb. 7 the Panthers will compete in a tri-meet with Ohlone and Merced in Merced.

Softball meeting scheduled Monday

There will be an organizational meeting for the Hartnell softball team this Monday, Jan. 15 at 1:30 in PE-134 (by the auxiliary gym). Any women interested in playing softball this year are invited to attend.

Hanquist named All-Conference

Hartnell goalie Dean Hanquist has been selected to the All-Coast Conference water polo team, by vote of the conference coaches. Hanquist was the only goalkeeper named to the team.

Field player Charlie Cunha, the Panthers' leading scorer, received honorable mention.

"I'm positive that Charlie would've been a shoo-in for All-Conference if he would've been on a winning team," said Hartnell coach Scott Standage. Cunha was high scorer in 11 of the Panthers' 15 games with a peak of five goals against Chabot Sept. 27.

Cunha and Hanquist were also named co-Most Valuable Players by their teammates. The duo did not miss a minute of action over the entire schedule.

Cunha also received Most Inspirational and Team Captain awards.

PERB reaches decision: chairmen form own unit

Following about two years of deliberation, the Public Employees Employment relations Board (PERB) has decided that department chairpersons are to be designed as supervisors — neither faculty or administration — therefore they must form their own bargaining unit for contract negotiations.

According to a Jan. 4 memo from Hartnell's superintendent-president Gibb R. Madsen the decision also stipulates that part-time instructors should be included in the faculty's bargaining unit. A full decision will be posted soon.
